

Can Be Called Love

Baqi Ba (巴岐)

This work is to explore the illusion that technology brings to people. I am thinking about WHAT IS THE MOST REAL ILLUSION OF THIS MOMENT. For example, in the context of all things connected through internet, seems we have been to every corner of the world, seems we are in various "party", seems we understand happiness and pain, seems we have witnessed the war that took place, seems to have met tens of thousands of people, seems we have recognized the code of the world running, seems we owned the future, seems we have mastered the truth...

The internal production system and technical logic that support the entire performance structure are hidden under the appearance that the audience can see. It even includes and incorporates buildings, spaces, the circulation of videos, and the audience's vision and movement. Hidden inside, so that the audience can easily experience the "watching" itself-seeing, listening, surrounding, imaging and experiencing their own body movement.
